Denver REALTOR® Awarded the Volunteering Works Grant from REALTOR® Magazine and the Good Neighbor Society

(April 29, 2013 - Denver, Colorado) Joan Rogliano is an outstanding player in the real estate game but what makes her truly unique is the way she gives back to the community and time she sets aside to help women around the country through her nonprofit organization, The Wildflower Women's Foundation.

Last week the REALTOR® Volunteering Works program announced the 2013 national recipients of mentoring grants and among the five chosen, was Denver REALTOR®, Joan Rogliano of Rogliano Real Estate Group. The Volunteering Works recipients were selected based on their dedication to the community through volunteer work and the potential for their charitable work to be expanded or improved with the help of an expert mentor.

Rogliano founded Wildflower Women's Foundation in 2010 to improve the lives of women who are struggling through difficult transitions of divorce or widowhood. The organization provides scholarships, legal advice, financial advocacy and workshops.

"At Wildflower Women's Foundation, we know that divorce and widowhood are some of the most traumatic experiences a woman may face in her lifetime – it was that realization that led to the creation of the Foundation. But instead of dwelling on the negative, we are committed to staying positive! When we band together, our radiant energy will spread like wildflowers," says Rogliano.

In the mentorship program, Rogliano will seek guidance from her mentor, 2003 Good Neighbor Claudio Deprez, based in West Palm Beach, Florida in order to increase the organizations visibility and build a stronger network of professionals to support women in transition.
